Final Test Track 8

Costumes are clothes that we wear to look like someone else. People wear costumes for some holidays or special occasions. Actors wear costumes in the theatre. The part of a theatre production that manages the costumes is called the costumes department. Some costume departments are very big. The Royal Shakespeare Company in England puts on about twenty theatrical productions every year. They buy materials and make all the clothes in every production. The costumes department orders the materials from Germany, Italy, France, Austria, Spain and The United States.
