Transcripts

I went to a great party last week at my uncle's house. I met some really cool people and everyone had a fantastic time. First, I talked to a park ranger called Helen. She works in a national park. She rides a horse around the park checking on the wildlife. How cool is that? Next, I talked to a woman called Paula. She works in an office and she said her job is really boring. Later, I talked to a guy called Daniel. He's a police officer, but he's a detective so he doesn't have to wear a uniform. His job sounded really cool. Finally, I talked to this guy called Calvin – well, in fact he was talking all the time and I just listened! He told me all about his favourite actors and all the DVDs he has at home. The party finished early because they all had to work the next day. I can't wait for the next one!

Tom: Hi, Josh. What are you doing?
Josh: Oh, hi Tom. I'm doing my homework. I'm writing a report on Nero and the Great Fire of Rome.
T: Who was Nero? Was he a Roman emperor?
J: Yes. Nero was Roman emperor from 54 to 68 AD. He was very cruel and he did many bad things. For example, he killed his mother and his stepmother after he became the ruler!
T: Wow! He was bad! What about the fire? When did it start?
J: It started in 64 AD. It was a really big fire, it lasted for ages.
T: Really? How long did it last?
J: The fire burned for five and a half days!
T: That's a long time!
J: Yes. Before it went out, the fire destroyed or damaged more than half of the city's districts.
T: Oh no! Do you know how many?
J: Er, yes. Let me look. It destroyed or seriously damaged 10 out of 14 districts. Some stories say that Nero was playing the fiddle, or violin, while Rome was burning, but that's not true.
T: No. There weren't any fiddles in Roman times.
J: Right! After the fire, Nero gave the homeless people a place to stay so he wasn't all bad.
T: Where did they stay?
J: He let them stay in his palaces and brought food in for the victims who had lost everything. He also changed the urban planning of Rome to stop future fires.
T: How did he change it?
J: He made the streets wider and the houses had to be made of brick or stone.
T: What were the houses made of before the fire? Wood?
J: Yes. They were made of wood and straw. After the Great Fire, Rome became more beautiful and safer, too. Anyway, I've finished my homework now. Shall we play on the computer?

T: Hi, Josh. What are you doing?
J: Oh, hi Tom. I'm doing my homework. I'm writing a report on Nero and the Great Fire of Rome.
T: Who was Nero? Was he a Roman emperor?
J: Yes. Nero was Roman emperor from 54 to 68 AD. He was very cruel and he did many bad things. For example, he killed his mother and his stepmother after he became the ruler!
T: Wow! He was bad! What about the fire? When did it start?
J: It started in 64 AD. It was a really big fire, it lasted for ages.
T: Really? How long did it last?
J: The fire burned for five and a half days!

T: That's a long time!

J: Yes. Before it went out, the fire destroyed or damaged more than half of the city's districts.

T: Oh no! Do you know how many?

J: Er, yes. Let me look. It destroyed or seriously damaged 10 out of 14 districts. Some stories say that Nero was playing the fiddle, or violin, while Rome was burning, but that's not true.

T: No. There weren't any fiddles in Roman times.

J: Right! After the fire, Nero gave the homeless people a place to stay so he wasn't all bad.

T: Where did they stay?

J: He let them stay in his palaces and brought food in for the victims who had lost everything. He also changed the urban planning of Rome to stop future fires.

T: How did he change it?

J: He made the streets wider and the houses had to be made of brick or stone.

T: What were the houses made of before the fire? Wood?

J: Yes. They were made of wood and straw. After the Great Fire, Rome became more beautiful and safer, too. Anyway, I've finished my homework now. Shall we play on the computer?

Good evening everyone, and welcome to the weather forecast. Tonight is going to be cold and rainy, with the temperature dropping in the early morning hours. The rain should stop by early tomorrow morning, but it's still going to be cloudy until later in the day. It may be very foggy in the morning, too, so be very careful driving to work. Hold onto your hats, because tomorrow afternoon, it's going to be windy. It will be sunny too, but that won't last. By tomorrow night, expect heavy rain and hail and some big changes for the rest of the week! It looks like we're going to have freezing temperatures and snow.

Teacher: OK, thanks Ben. Very good. Who's next?

Caroline: Me!

T: Right, come on then, Caroline. Which planet are you going to talk about?

C: Neptune.

T: OK.

C: Neptune is one of the outer planets. It's the eighth planet in the solar system. Here's a photograph.

T: Good.

C: It's 4,546 million kilometres from the Sun, and its diameter is 49,528 kilometres. It is the fourth largest planet. It is named after the Roman god of the sea. It looks blue and has a small dark spot. It has 14 moons, one of which is called Triton.

T: Great! Thanks Caroline. Right, who's next?

T: OK, thanks Ben. Very good. Who's next?

Presenter: Hello! I'm here today with Gina Vislava, a circus performer. I'm going to ask her some questions... Hello, Gina! Sit down.

Gina: Hello!

P: Oh no, you're limping! What have you done?

G: Oh, I've injured my leg. That's why I'm wearing this bandage.

P: Oh no. Have you broken it?

G: No, no, I haven't. My leg isn't broken, it's not serious.

P: Oh, good. How did you do it?

G: Well, I was practising for my next act and I fell off one of my horses.

P: Oh! How often does that happen?

G: Not very often, thank goodness! I'm very careful. It was really embarrassing, actually!

P: Oh dear! Have you ever had an accident during a show?

G: No, never. I've been very lucky!

P: I would be really nervous out there... Have you performed in the circus for a long time?

G: Oh yes, I have. Since I was three years old! My family runs this circus, and they started including me in the opening show from when I was really small...

Interviewer: Hello, Karen. Thanks for taking time to talk to us today.

Karen: No problem. I'm glad that people are interested!

I: Not many people know what a city planner does. Could you describe your job to us?

K: Of course! I help make decisions about the best way to change and build our city. I find out how many people use the streets, schools, water and parks. I talk to the people who live there. I find out how much the changes will cost.

Interviewer: That sounds complicated!

K: It is, but it's also fascinating! I get to solve many problems, and I give the city leaders advice about what to do.

I: What type of problems?

K: Well, in our city, for example, there are a lot of cars but there aren't many buses. That means we have too much traffic and too much noise.

I: OK, I see.

K: People also tell me that there are not enough places to park...

I: Yes, my dad says that!

K: ...And there aren't many green spaces for people to enjoy. So I'm planning some new parks.

I: Cool! What's the most difficult part of your job?

K: The long hours! I don't have enough time to do everything!

Hello and welcome to Amazing Inventors! Do you know who invented the windscreen wipers that are used on cars? Well, wipers were invented by a woman called Mary Anderson! One rainy day in 1903 Mary was riding in a tram in New York City when she noticed that the driver had to stop, get out in the rain and wipe the water from the windscreen with a cloth. The idea for the windscreen wiper was born! A patent for Anderson's invention was issued in 1905, and by 1913 windscreen wipers were included on most cars. The original invention wasn't electric, though; the wipers were operated by hand!

Jessie: Oh, Mum! Please don't say no! If you don't let me go to the concert next Saturday, I'll never speak to you again!

Mum: We already have plans, Jessie. We're going to visit Grandma.

J: But we can visit Grandma any time, Mum!

M: If we don't go, Grandma will feel really disappointed. It's her birthday!

J: Wouldn't she be OK if we visited her on Sunday instead of Saturday?

M: No, Jessie. I don't think that's a good idea.

J: Well, can we visit Grandma Saturday morning? If we go in the morning, I'll still be able to go to the concert at night.

M: Well, OK. We'll go on Saturday morning, then.

J: Great! Have you bought Grandma a present yet?

M: No, but I'm going shopping tomorrow. Why?

J: Well, I was thinking... what if we buy Grandma a computer?

M: A computer?

J: Yeah! If she had a computer, we would be able to send her photos and e-mails, and she could find new recipes online.

M: Well... actually, that's a really good idea. Are you going to come with me to the shopping centre?

J: Of course, Mum! Let's go!

Narrator: The Story of Pygmalion and Galatea. Pygmalion was a sculptor in ancient Greece. He didn't believe in love. His heart was as cold as the marble he used for his statues.

Pygmalion: The perfect woman doesn't exist, so I'm going to make a statue of one! I'll call her Galatea.

N: Pygmalion worked and worked, and he fell in love with his own creation!

Pygmalion: I love you, Galatea!

N: He became desperate because he was in love with a statue!

P: I'm in love with my statue! I don't know what to do!

Friend: You should ask Venus, the goddess of love, for help.

Venus: Come to my temple, Pygmalion.

N: So Pygmalion went to the temple of Venus.

V: Now Galatea is alive!

N: Pygmalion and Galatea lived happily ever after.

Jane: Hi, Peter. What are you going to do in the holidays?

Peter: Oh, I can't wait! We usually go to the mountains, but this year we're doing something different.

J: Where are you going?

P: To Rome. I can't wait to see the Colosseum.

J: Oh, brilliant! That'll be great!

Jane: Hi, James. Are you OK?

James: Hi, Jane. I'm just tired. It's so hot today!

Ja: There's a drinking fountain over there. You have to drink more water in hot weather or you get dehydrated, you know.

J: I know. I'm really thirsty.

Peter: What did you do in Italy, Jay?

Jay: Oh, loads of things, it was awesome. I had a fantastic time.

P: Did you see the Colosseum?

J: No, we didn't. I've seen it before. We went to the Roman Circus, though. We saw a chariot race just like in the time of the Romans. It was great!

Mum: Hello?

Lucy: Hi, Mum! It's me!

M: Lucy! How are you?

L: Great!

M: What's the weather like? Is it still raining?

L: It's OK today, but there was a terrible storm with thunder and lightning yesterday. I didn't leave the house!

M: Oh dear!

Ben: Hello, Leo. How are you?

Leo: Hi, Ben. I'm fine, and you?

B: OK. What are you going to do in the holidays?

L: Oh, it depends. My dad says we might go to the beach.

B: What do you want to do?

L: Go to the beach, definitely. I love it!

Amy: Hi, Damian.

Damian: Hi, Amy.

A: What are you going to do on Saturday morning? Are you going to play football?

D: No, it's been cancelled! I'm really tired, though, so I don't mind. I love weekends because I don't have to get up early!

A: Me too!
